The nature of our coast!

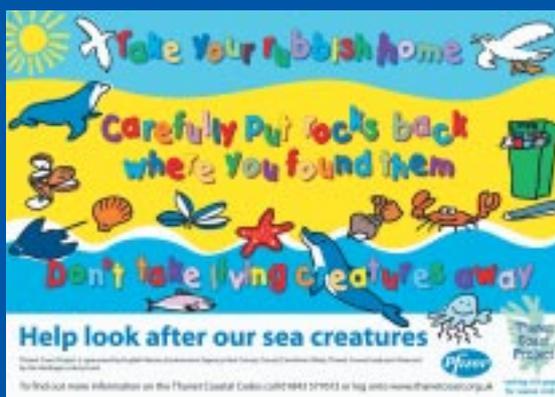

Long-clawed porcelain crab

Botany Bay, Broadstairs

It's an important time for reviewing how we can all manage to keep our coastline so that nature and people can thrive side by side. See page 2.

Four colourful posters will be popping up across Thanet this month with some important messages about marine conservation and water safety – and it's all thanks to local children from Thanet. See page 4.

Project's log book

Welcome to another packed edition of the Thanet Coast Project's newsletter, which includes details of the latest coastal news and activities.

You'll be able to catch up with coastal developments – including the workshops to review the management of the coast (page 2) and what we have been up to

Warden training

over the first five years (page 3). You can find out about two of the main initiatives to come out of the project, the Thanet Coastal Codes (page 4) and the Coastal Warden Scheme (page 5). All this work was initiated by local people during the first set of Management Scheme workshops.

Look out for all the spring and early summer coastal events and activities listed inside – and why not come and join us!

SPRING INTO 2006 COASTAL EVENTS

Guided Walks, Cycle Rides, Beach Cleans and Family Events

Most are not too physically demanding and would suit a variety of ages – but check details as longer events require more careful preparation. Always wear suitable clothing and shoes. Bring drinks, sun-block and hats in hot weather.

C – For cycle rides, please ensure your bike is roadworthy or the leader may refuse to take you! We also recommend that riders wear helmets and for children this is compulsory.

B – For the practical events, gloves and bags will be provided. However, it is advisable to wear stout footwear and suitable clothing (waterproofs/windproofs, depending on the weather) and to bring a drink and packed lunch.

F – These activities are particularly suitable for children and families, however children must be accompanied by a parent, or responsible adult, throughout the activity.

What else? There's a variety of different events that takes place around our coastline. For further information call Thanet's Visitor Information Centres on 0870 2646111.

Helping people and wildlife thrive

Work started in 1998 when a series of stakeholder workshops looked at how a range of coastal activities could take place while allowing wildlife to thrive. The resulting North East Kent European Marine Sites Management Scheme lasted for six years, but now it's time to take a fresh look at the Scheme and any changes that should be made, so that it is relevant for the next six years.

The first scheme focused on three specially protected birds – Turnstone, Golden Plover and Little Tern – as well as key habitats, including chalk caves, chalk reef and the sand and mudflats. The new scheme will include other habitats and species and will look at how natural systems work and how people interact with them. This is an internationally agreed approach to management called the Ecosystems Approach.

Local people representing a variety of different coastal interests, such as fishing, tourism, economic regeneration and recreational activities, are looking at this approach through a series of workshops. They will be looking at what can be achieved over the next six years. The work is being sponsored by English Nature, Kent County Council and Pfizer.

By coming to the workshops, these groups will influence what goes into the next Scheme. They will consider:

- What is working well now
- How this can be improved and strengthened
- What else needs to happen
- How this can be achieved

We want to find actions that can be delivered over the next six years and that allow both people and nature to thrive.

FIVE YEARS OF MAKING THE MOST OF OUR COAST!

Who, when and why did the Thanet Coast Project start?

Tony Child, the Thanet Coast Project Manager, started in 2001 and was joined by Naomi Biggs, the Education Officer, in 2004. The Thanet Coast Project was set up to help deal with a variety of wildlife issues. The project reports every six months to authorities and agencies responsible for the management of our coastline and works with local people to help safeguard and raise awareness of the importance of the Thanet coastline and wildlife.

Where do you get your funding from?

The main sponsors are English Nature, Environment Agency, Kent County Council, Southern Water and Thanet District Council, with support from the Heritage Lottery Fund. Further funds need to be secured for 2006.

What are your best achievements?

Launching the first set of Coastal Codes for the country was a big achievement for us. Other major projects include the training of the volunteer Coastal Wardens and organising a variety of fun events that support coastal wildlife and tourism.

How many people have benefited?

It's hoped everyone who enjoys Thanet's beaches and bays will benefit from our work. Over 3,000 people took part in 80 public events in 2005. Educational activities were attended by around 1,000 people. Schoolchildren from across Thanet took part in water safety and interactive coastal code talks. Our five year report can be viewed at www.thanetcoast.org.uk/assets/

Thanet Coast Project aims to:

- Raise awareness of the importance of the bird and marine life
- Work with local people to help safeguard the coast
- Encourage and run wildlife related events and activities
- Be a focal point for enquiries
- Keep people informed

NEW LOOK COASTAL CODES

If you're unsure how to avoid disturbing wildlife when walking the dogs along the beach at Westgate or ever need tips about how you can help to act responsibly when angling on the beaches at Birchington – then grab a copy of Thanet Coastal Codes.

The nine codes, which help safeguard wildlife and allow everyone to enjoy coastal activities, have been updated to include even more useful information. Created in 2002, the Codes of Conduct were the first set of guidelines for a marine protected area anywhere in the county.

Clubs and individuals across Thanet have adopted the Codes since they were launched. Dog walkers, sailing clubs, jet skiers and other coastal users have all benefited. So good are the Codes, copies have been flying off the shelves in the office.

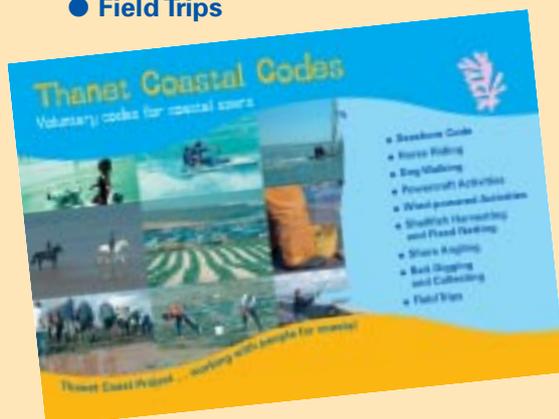

Last year representatives from each of the nine activities were asked to update the Codes. New sets are hot of the press with a new design and are available from your local library, Visitor Information Centre or by contacting the Thanet Coast Project.

The Codes aim to:

- Avoid unintentional harm to marine and bird life
- Encourage responsible use of the coast
- Keep everyone safe

Thanet Coastal Codes

- Seashore Code
- Horse Riding
- Dog Walking
- Powercraft Activities
- Wind-powered Activities
- Shellfish Harvesting and Fixed Netting
- Shore Angling
- Bait Digging and Collecting
- Field Trips

The Codes help safeguard wildlife and allow everyone to enjoy coastal activities...

It's amazing what some people can do with a splash of paint and a dollop of glitter.

Four colourful posters will be popping up across Thanet this month with some important messages about marine conservation and water safety – and it's all thanks to local children from Thanet.

The talented young artists were winners of the Coastal Codes poster competition held during last year's Thanet Coast Project's education programme, which visited over 3,500 children in two weeks. Posters will brighten up beaches and classrooms with vital messages about the Seashore and School Trip Codes.

The school visits were organised by Chris Betts, Water Safety Supervisor of Thanet Leisure Force, and Dave Melmoth, a local HM Coastguard. Pfizer Limited kindly offered to design and print the

WARDENS SUCCESS STORY

The number of volunteers on the Thanet Coastal Warden Scheme has rocketed to over 100, making our beaches and bays some of the best looked after in the country.

Thanks to the popular scheme, which recently celebrated its first anniversary, all 47 sections of our coastline have now been adopted by at least one volunteer. As well as gaining a better understanding about human and wildlife activities on our beaches, the volunteers help the Thanet Coast Project by offering their support in a variety of ways.

Wardens have taken part in a range of activities, such as recording Turnstones, rockpooling for marine beasts and helping to run the Seashore Safaris – a summer programme of marine education activities for children. Volunteers across Thanet have spotted missing torpedo buoys, litter, washed up oil and even a marooned harbour porpoise. Some have used their skills and experience to help with administration duties for the Thanet Coast Project.

The Wardens have helped to spread the word about the importance of our coast and have been integral in raising the profile of the Thanet Coast Project. In return for their hard work, volunteers are invited to attend training events, including coastal bird identification with the Sandwich Bay Bird Observatory, the Adopt-a-Beach scheme organised by the Marine Conservation Society and presentations on Marine Mammals.

The first year of the Thanet Coastal Warden Scheme ended with a celebration evening at Ramsgate Yacht Club, giving wardens the chance to share their volunteer experiences. It was also an opportunity for St. Mildred's Bay Association to show off their 'Volunteer Excellence Award' from Kent County Council, which was won for dedicated hard work with the warden scheme.

If you fancy volunteering as a Coastal Warden, call 01843 577409.

Naomi Biggs, Thanet Coast Education Officer, who organised the competition, is very excited about seeing the posters in Thanet. "Pfizer has been very supportive in producing the posters and they've done the children's artwork justice," she says. "The posters are wonderfully bright and colourful and are sure to grab the attention of young people around Thanet. Everybody has an important role to play in keeping our beaches clean and safe and these posters are an ideal way to communicate how local residents and visitors can all help preserve our coast for many years to come."

The North East Kent European Marine Sites

Managing the North East Kent Coast is a free booklet summarising of the North East Kent European Marine Sites Management Scheme. It is available from local Visitor Information Centres, libraries or from the Thanet Coast Project.

Monitoring this special coast

The South East of England has a new marine lichen record. That's one of the findings from the latest survey of shore life for the Thanet Coast Special Area of Conservation (SAC). The report will be issued as an English Nature Research Report later this year. For more information, contact Ingrid Chudleigh, English Nature, on 01233 812525.

Research helps decisions

Decisions made about the future of our coast need to be supported by good scientific evidence. The North East Kent Scientific Coastal Advisory Group advises the management group on scientific issues affecting the Thanet Coast. The group held two research conferences in 2002 and 2004, and for details on these presentations ask the Thanet Coast Project www.thanetcoast.org.uk
The next coastal research conference is planned for autumn 2006. For further information contact Geoff Meaden at gjm1@canterbury.ac.uk

Conserving the marine environment

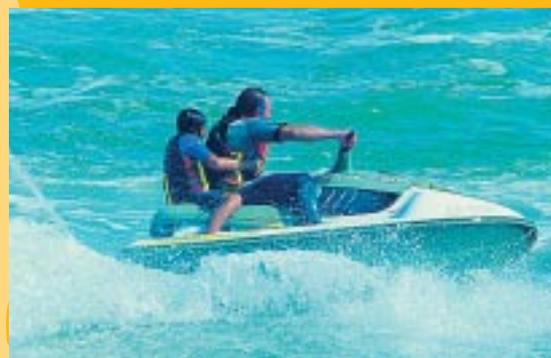

Our marine life and seas deserve the sort of protection that is afforded to wildlife on land – and the new draft Marine Bill proposals and consultation is welcomed by many as a step in the right direction towards some very welcome changes. The paper can be viewed at www.defra.gov.uk

Kent PWC Code

There's nothing like the thrills and spills of riding the waves on a jetski or powerboat. But there's also some important advice to take on board – which can all be found in a handy new leaflet.

There's advice on launch sites and environmentally sensitive areas. There are also details of codes of conduct, restricted areas and useful contacts. The leaflet was put together by The Kent Coastal Networks' Personal Water Crafts Working Group. For a copy contact kent.coasts@kent.gov.uk

The Group has organised a seminar on May 18 in Herne Bay, which provides an introduction to using equipment safely. It's an opportunity to share knowledge and network and will include presentations about how to use water crafts.

There will also be the chance to take part in fun demonstrations, with a display from the UK Freestyle Champion at the end of the day. For more information or to register for the event, please contact elizabeth.holliday@kent.gov.uk

People of all ages are invited to the first ever 'Great Egg Case Hunt' to search for Skate and Ray eggs at Ramsgate's Main Sands shoreline on Wednesday 12 April at 2pm. Several species of Skate and Ray around the British coast have dramatically declined, so the Shark Trust needs your help to collect some vital information.
